DENVER - One person was found dead inside a burned out RV in Denver early Sunday morning.

The camper was parked behind Cadillac Jack's Bar and Grill near Monaco and Iliff.

Firefighters say the RV was completely engulfed in flames. The cause of the fire is undetermined, and investigators have not officially identified the victim.

But friends believe they know who it is. They say the RV belonged to Lenny England, a handyman who did odd jobs in the area and frequently stayed in the camper.

A man died in an early-morning fire Monday that destroyed an RV parked at a strip mall.

Denver firefighters received a call at 4 a.m. about a trash fire at 2200 S. Monaco Pkwy., but when they arrived they found the recreational vehicle ablaze, fire department spokesman Alex Paez said.

"After the fire was extinguished, a body was found inside the RV," he said. The body is now at the coroner's office where an autopsy is planned. No official ID has yet been made.

Fox 31 reported Monday night that the dead man was a handyman and "vagabond" who lived in the RV and did odd jobs around Cadillac Jack's Bar and Grill.

Regulars at the establishment were mourning the loss of their friend. "He really didn't need a whole lot in his life, but he had friends and he had people who cared about him," Arnie Taylor told Fox 31.

Firefighters were trying to determine the cause of the blaze, Paez said.
